Health app Well opens up French-speaking Switzerland thanks to partnership with Réseau Delta

Schlieren, 26 April 2022 – Well, Switzerland's health platform, is now working in partnership with Réseau Delta, the largest managed care network in French-speaking Switzerland. For Well this marks another important step towards the digitalisation and integrated networking of the Swiss healthcare system. The aim is to connect doctors, pharmacies, health insurers and other service providers in order to offer the Swiss population self-determined, secure and digital access to healthcare services and providers along the entire treatment path.

Via the cooperation with Réseau Delta, the Well health app will in future provide people in French-speaking Switzerland with digital access to medical services and documents. Réseau Delta has locations in the cantons of Fribourg, Geneva, Jura, Valais and Vaud. In addition to the founding partners CSS, Medi24, Visana, and Zur Rose, various other partners from a range of sectors within the healthcare system are already working with Well to break new ground. Around 4000 doctors are connected to Well and their numbers continue to expand.

Medical services, digitally streamlined

Anyone being treated by a doctor belonging to Réseau Delta will continue to benefit from further streamlining in the future. The digital exchange of documents between the practice and the patient via Well Medical Safe is already possible: documents are conveniently and securely exchanged and stored digitally between both parties. Further functionalities such as digital appointment making are currently being tested and could soon be available.

Simpler interfaces – more efficient processes

Well Gesundheit AG has reached another milestone on the journey to realising its ultimate vision: to achieve easier access to healthcare services across Switzerland and pioneer more efficient interfaces – paving the way for more cost-effective processes – within the healthcare sector. "Through the partnership with Réseau Delta, Well users in French-speaking Switzerland will benefit from digital simplifications in the future," says Well CEO Alexander Bojer. "Well is expanding its partnerships all the time with the aim of putting health in the hands of app users. I am very excited about our next steps."

Independent enterprise

Well Gesundheit AG was founded in late 2020 by Well partners CSS, Medi24, Visana, and Zur Rose Group as a public limited company with headquarters in Schlieren. Alexander Bojer, start-up entrepreneur and former consultant at Boston Consulting Group and technology provider Accenture, has occupied the post of CEO since 1 March 2021. The remaining members of the senior management team also join him from the ICT sector. They are Mario Bernasconi as Head of Business Development and Partnerships, Stephanie Künzli as Chief Product Officer, and Lukas Stadler as Chief Technology Officer.

About Well

The Well health platform stands for the digitalisation and streamlining of the Swiss healthcare system. As a mobile app, the platform provides digital access to quality-assured, individually tailored healthcare services via a single platform. Connecting all stakeholders, including doctors and pharmacies, means patients can find answers to their questions fast, make contact with medical providers, and take their wellbeing into their own hands.

Health insurers CSS and Visana, telemedicine and digital healthcare provider Medi24, and online pharmacy and technology partner Zur Rose Group are joint founders and operators of the Swiss digital healthcare platform. Well offers itself as an independent platform open to all parties in the healthcare system, especially health insurers and service providers.
